Ring road reroute proposed

Former justice minister Alison Redford says southwest leg could go around Tsuu T'ina () Mayor Nenshi points to continued commuter struggles

Alberta's former justice minister says progress needs to be made on developing Calgary's southwest ring road even if it means extending it around the western edge of the Tsuu T'ina Na-

Alison Redford, a candidate in the Tory leadership race, said the original discussion many decades ago about developing a transportation loop around the city was to allow for easy north-south access in Alberta.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi took issue with Redford's suggestion, quoting studies done by the Alberta government that show only about eight per cent of ring road traffic would be destined for the highway.

"The rest of it is destined for points within Calgary," he said. "So maybe you want to build a road on the west side of the nation but it certainly would not solve the problems of commuter traffic in southwest Calgary, which a lot of people who live down there are hopeful the ring road will do." Redford, a former Lakeview resident, said one road could be built around Tsuu T'ina and. should negotiations with the nation reopen, another could run through it to enhance downtown commuter access.

A spokesperson for Alberta Transportation withheld comment but referred to a slide outlining concerns with a route around the nation.

They included a possible need for additional land from property owners in the area and an outstretched southwest corridor of 74 kilometres.

Panel backs research on oilands pollution

A scientific panel has backed research that indicates oilsands development is releasing contaminants into northern Alberta watersheds.

The panel also concludes that government monitoring programs weren't even trying to determine if the industry was polluting the Athabasca River.

Environment Minister Rob Renner said the results from the panel's review will be used in an ongoing redesign of how the province keeps track of industry's impact on land and water.

But David Schindler, one of the University of Alberta scientists whose study led to the panel, said it's probably already too late to get a true picture of how energy development has affected the area. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Online budget talks set to begin

The City of Calgary announced yesterday the completion of the first phase of a program entitled "Our City. Our Budget. Our Future.'

The program aims to involve citizens, city employ-ees and community groups in a review of core services and budget co-ordination. Phase 1 collected information from more than 1,500 participants. Phase 2 begins March 15 and runs until the end of April. It will focus more on budget consultation through online discussions, YouTube video submissions for BudgetTV and community forums.

TURNER CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Students and faculty searching for books may have a difficult time heading into the end of the semester as the University of Calgary's new library is faced with a setback.

Tom Hickerson, viceprovost libraries and cultural resources, said he received a report Friday from engineers detailing issues with the new Taylor Family Digital Li-brary's heating, cooling and humidifying system.

'This has been something we've had a hard time getting our head around," said Hickerson. "There will be significant renovations throughout the building.

The intention was to open the upper floors, which house the majority of the books, on March 15, but repairs on each of the six floors will take months. according to Hickerson.

"We just feel absolutely terrible about this. We had planned for this for a long time."

History student Erin Patterson said she's frustrated with trying to track down books.

"I have got three classes that I need to get books out for references ... I am really having troubles getting the history books,' she said.

"The term papers are worth like 40 per cent, so it's kind of a big deal.'

Some Calgary movie buffs are in for a wild ride this weekend.

That's because Scotiabank Theatre Chinook will unveil 30 D-Box MFX seats, which move frame-byframe in conjunction with the movie playing on screen.

Each seat comes equipped with its own remote control to allow moviegoers to customize their experience, said Cineplex Entertainment spokesperson Kyle Moffatt.

"These seats are intended to enhance the movie experience for guests," he noted. "If an explosion hap-

Moffatt could not say what films would utilize the seats this weekend but said all 30 seats are located in one theatre. Sitting in

Gluten-free market set to open doors

Sheena McFarlane was diagnosed with celiac disease — an intolerance to wheat, barley and rye — while pregnant five years ago.

Since then, she has been frustrated in the search for gluten-free food for her and her family.

With few options available, particularly near her Panorama home, McFarlane decided to open her own shop. Thus, the Gluten Free Market Place was born.

Stocking both perishable and non-perishable gluten-free products, the store, located at No. 222–40 Country Hills Landing, offers one-stop-shopping for celiac sufferers of the northwest. It opens today.

McFarlane admits it is not a new idea — there are gluten-free bakeries in the city, and many health-food stores carry gluten-free products — but she is excited to offer everything from a selection of glutenfree fresh-baked cakes to body products all in one location.

Military spending at highest point in decades: Study

Canada was top contributor to UN peace-support missions, but now ranks 60th on list of 102

Canada is spending more on its military than at any time since the end of the Second World War, a new study reports.

The Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives released the study yesterday, which says defence spending is expected to hit $22.3 billion this year.

Researchers estimate that's a 54 per cent increase over the last decade.

The study, produced for the centre by Bill Robinson, senior adviser at the Rideau Institute, notes a large part of the budget increase has gone toward fighting the war in Afghanistan.

Robinson argues Afghanistan has robbed Canada of the ability to carry out traditional peacekeeping missions.

"Canada could make a much greater contribution to global security and humanitarian action by shifting resources to non-military security efforts and to peacekeeping operations," Robinson said in a release by the centre. "Such a shift would make Canada truly a great power in the world of development assistance and humanitarian aid. This is an arena in which Canada could punch above its weight."

The willowy princess-tobe's appearance and reported comments during a visit to Northern Ireland sparked some concerns yesterday about whether she's losing too much weight ahead of the April 29 royal wedding. The subject even became a topic on Twitter.

In front-page newspaper photographs, Middleton appears to be in good health if slightly slimmer than usual, but reporters heard many in the Belfast crowd of well-wishers on Tuesday making comments that she looked a bit gaunt.

Lindsay, told Middleton "not to lose any more weight," and said Middleton remarked that it was all part of the wedding

Palace officials refused to say whether Prince William's fiancée is trying to lose a few pounds before the big day. They also declined to specify her height, weight or to comment on her words in Northern Ireland.

"It was an off-the-cuff comment," said a press aide to Prince Charles who asked not to be identified because of palace protocol.

Clashes between Christians, Muslims kill 13

New Egyptian cabinet ordered police to take back streets Less than half of security force back at work

Clashes between Muslims and Christians in Egypt left 13 dead and 140 wounded, deepening a sense of chaos as the police and ruling military struggled to maintain order barely a month after a popular uprising ousted longtime leader Hosni Mubarak.

The fighting when a Muslim mob attacked thousands of Christians protesting the burning last week of a church in Soul, a village just south of Cairo.

The Muslims torched the church amid escalating tensions over a love affair between a Muslim woman and a Christian man. The relationship set off a violent feud between the couple's families. The woman's father and a cousin of the man were

Canadian officer gets a taste of Haiti

• More than 150 Canadian police officers are in Haiti on a UN mission to provide security and expertise to a nation still reeling from the effects of an earthquake

Domestic abuse and fights over money are the most common crimes in Camp Corail, a tent city in Haiti.

"There was one murdersuicide and I think that's the most serious case we've had," said Const. Jules Laraque, one of five police officers from Halifax who are working in Haiti.

His nine-month mission is nearly over.

"There are cases of rape too, but it's about once or twice a month."

He's part of a UN contingent working with Haitian police to keep the peace in Camp Corail, home to over 7,000 displaced people.

The country of his parents' birth is far from restored.

A devastating earthquake rocked Haiti on Jan. 12, 2010. There are still many demolished buildings yet to be cleaned up, Laraque said. "When things were starting to slowly move forward, there was a cholera outbreak that hit the city and the election, and that caused some troubles."

And while there is plenty of crime in Camp Corail, there are fewer convictions.

Penniless victims have a hard time getting transportation into Port-au-Prince to make court dates, so the accused usually goes free.

Background

- Mooseheads. Const. Jules Laraque played and coached for the Halifax Mooseheads QMJHL team.
- Oilers. His older brother is former Edmonton Oilers enforcer Georges Laraque.
- Laraque says he will take home many happy memories when his nine-month mission ends on March 22.

TSX merger bad for Canada, banks argue

▶ Brain drain, job loss among scenarios painted by opponents of Toronto-London stock exchange

The heart of Canada's financial sector joined a growing list of naysayers warning of the dangers in a proposed merger of the Toronto and London stock exchange operators, casting further doubt on the future of the deal.

Several of Canada's biggest banks argued yesterday that the Toronto exchange already attracts global companies and that plans to put the CEO of the merged company in London would draw the decision-makers to England, reducing Canada's role.

"We do not believe this takeover offer is the right solution to creating a globally sustainable exchange "Where do you think the big investment firms will be? They won't be in Canada, they'll be in London."

STEPHEN JARISLOWSKY, CEO, JARISLOWSKY, FRASER

and nor will it allow Canada to achieve the benefits of globalization offered," Bob Dorrance, head of TD Securities, told a hearing at the Ontario legislature.

Financial institutions, including TD, CIBC and National Bank, are drafting a public letter warning that Canada risks losing its clout as a financial centre. Others are being asked to sign it.

However, opposition to the deal was by no means unanimous.

Eric Tripp, president of BMO Capital Markets, which advised the TMX Group on the deal with London Stock Exchange Group PLC, said the merger would benefit the industry.

"The TMX has a real opportunity to expand and grow, under favourable terms, and ensure that Canada's exchanges won't be sidelined," Tripp said. "It is an opportunity to capitalize on our core competencies to both grow and create jobs."

STICK, GLOVES, JERSEY ... BOXER BRIEFS?

He says ...

I, apparently, am a pantywaist — that insult reserved by bellicose hockey fans for those of us who dare suggest that the NHL should be less violent than a game of Grand Theft Auto 3.

hey say pantywaist because they know they can't call us female genitalia, though they'd like to, so they pick something that sounds like it's in the same general vicinity.

Let me say in reply: What a bunch of boxer briefs.

I like bockey. Hike hitting

I like hockey, I like hitting, I had great fun watching earlier this year when Boston and Dallas had three fights in the first six seconds.

But I'm getting pretty tired of watching concussed players flop to the ice like they're Muppets and Frank Oz is at lunch.

And I'm even more tired that it's still up for debate on television. In newspapers, the case is closed: Accidental and malicious hits alike are threatening to kill someone.

But on TV, there's always somebody — Don Cherry and Craig MacTavish come immediately to mind — who makes it sound like anybody who questions all but the most objectionable hits is threatening to turn the game into the Royal Winnipeg Ballet (Royal Phoenix Ballet after 1996).

The Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy — named after the only player who ever died because of an NHL game — does not need another namesake. Masterton wasn't wearing a helmet when he cracked his head on the ice. Wearing one was considered a sign of weakness. And it took a couple of decades before everybody was namby-pamby enough to wear one.

The caveman culture — sorry, "The Code" — is hard to break.

That's why it's especially ridiculous when TV commentators resistant to change bark that "I PLAYED /COACHED/KNOW THE GAME!"

The NHL game is played by about 700 players. It's watched by millions. The game isn't for them. It's for us.

And being a backseat driver is perfectly acceptable when the car is going the wrong way down the highway.

A big debate needs to happen at the league level, but for now the NHL should multiply all its typical suspensions by about 10. The league will be the last to come around but the discussion already appears to be changing, even on TV.

Two years ago, TSN's Bob McKenzie — he who never played the NHL game! — seemed like the only prominent hockey voice who thought hockey violence should be dealt with. Now even former Boston Bruin Mike Milbury, who once beat a fan with his shoe, is wondering if the league is handling the rules around head shots properly.

What a pantywaist.

The latest looks from the world's best designers carried by Holt Renfrew are premiering in Calgary. The beautiful centrepiece escalators of the store are doubling as the runway, with models parading up and down.

Perhaps the best part of this production is that the show called Fashionata is all in support of Calgary's Safe Haven Foundation. While you are salivating over the latest trends, you'll also be helping out those who can only dream of attending a fashion show. Karen Sherbut, president and co-founder of Safe Haven Foundation, says through events like these, the organization is "helping at risk youth get their future back."

Before I tell you the ticket price, let me tell you what you get. Not only are you amongst the lucky handful of Canadians to get access to the hottest fashion show of the season, you can also partake in a preshow cocktail reception and an after-party in the exclusive third-floor Club Fashionata. Plus, I got the inside scoop on some pretty sweet swag bag snags!

All guests receive a limited edition Anzie flower bracelet valued at $175. If that wasn't enough, you'll also walk away with a $50 gift certificate to Holt's to use when you spend a cool $500 or more and five per cent of all gift certificates sold that day goes to the charity. No need to slap me; I'm not joking.
So what's the price to get passed the velvet rope? $375 a pop. But, if you take off the $175 value of the beautiful bracelet, that's a reasonable $200 admission charge to this red carpet affair. Plus, a percentage of the ticket price is eligible for a tax receipt.

• Wentz seeks joint custody • Simpson wants to keep ex to visitations

It looks like Ashlee Simpson's divorce from Pete Wentz isn't going to be as simple as she thought, as Wentz filed papers this week seeking joint custody of their two-year-old son, Bronx, and requesting that they each pay their own legal fees, according to People magazine.

In her initial divorce filing, Simpson had requested full custody of Bronx, with visitation rights for Wentz, and that Wentz pay her lawyer costs.

But a source close to Wentz says this isn't a sign that a brutal custody battle is coming.

"It's a very straightforward response asking for joint custody and fair dis-tribution of attorney's fees. He's not gearing up for a custody war," the source says.

Getting hung up on art

Tips for hanging artwork in your home

DESIGN CENTRE

KARI, LOHNES HOME@ METRONEWS.CA

It constantly surprises me how so me now so many peo-ple buy a nice sofa, get some great art to hang over it, then hang the artwork way too high.

I see this common decorating mistake over and over again. Lets hang our art at a place where we can enjoy it and where it compliments out decorating ef-

Here are some easy-tofollow rules for hanging artwork throughout your home.

Anchor the art

When hanging art work over a sofa in your living room or a headboard in the bedroom (these pieces of furniture are referred to as an anchor), the artwork should fill approximately two-thirds of the width of the anchor.

For example, if you have a sofa that is six-feet wide. the artwork hanging above should fill about four feet of the width of the sofa.

This doesn't mean that you have to look for a piece of art that is four-feet wide — you can combine pieces to come up with a total width of four feet.

Never hang artwork in relationship to the height of the ceiling. It should be hung in relationship to the anchor you are hanging it above or the floor. In a lowceiling room, this means you should hang your artwork about eight inches above the anchor.

In a room with high ceilings, hang pieces 12 inches above the anchor.

Floating your art

When hanging artwork without an anchor, consider every angle from which you will be viewing the when deciding where to hang it. Remember that hanging pieces lower to the ground creates a more relaxed feel in your room. The basic rule is to measure 66 inches from the floor - the middle of your artwork should be at this height. You've likely heard that artwork should be hung at "eye level," a qualification that is obviously in the eye of the beholder!

Sixty-six inches (or five feet, six inches) is approximately the height of the average woman, so ensuring that the centre of your artwork is placed at this height is a good rule of thumb when taking the "eye level" idea into account. If hanging artwork up a stairwell wall then follow the 66-inch rule and make sure to space the art between the bottom and top steps only.

Updating your art The shape of your available wall space can greatly influence the way in which you hang your artwork.

If you want to fill up some wall space between two doors, for example, it would be appropriate to hang artwork in a vertical fashion. It is particularly important to consider the shape of your wall space when hanging a collection. Remember that using large artwork in small spaces creates grandeur this is a great tip to keep in mind when decorating your entranceway, for example. If hanging a group of artwork together, then put the largest or heaviestlooking piece in the middle and gradually place the artwork smaller and smaller until the smallest art is displayed on the outer edges of the grouping.

Other things to hang

For hanging a fuel-burning or electric fireplace, the rule is the same as hanging a plasma TV. Fireplaces should be hung 36 to 42 inches from the floor to the centre of the fireplace. Similarly, plasma televisions should be hung about 40 to 42 inches from the floor to the television's centre. If hanging art or a flat screen television over a mantel, it should be placed three to six inches above the top of the man-

Outdoor lighting comes of age

• The variety you find indoors is now outside too

A trend toward creating "outdoor rooms" has dramatically increased lighting options for homeowners who want to extend their time outside.

Most indoor lighting fix- chandeliers, pendant lights, table lamps now have a counterpart designed for patios or decks.

We have seen outdoor lights absolutely replicating indoor designs," said Anne Robert of theoutdoorstyl ist.com, a website that focuses on home trends.

"Outdoor lighting is a mood setter. It can make or break a design just like it can indoors.

The abundance of products lets you make outdoor spaces more functional, said Rich Young of Outdoor Living Brands in Richmond, Va. "It allows families to extend the square footage of their home," he said. "With the right light, you can extend the evening for dining or reading or other activities outdoors.

When choosing fixtures for outdoor entertaining areas, consider how much light is necessary, said Alene Workman, a spokeswoman for the American Society of Interior Designers. A table needs to have sufficient light so diners can eat, whereas a conversation area may need only soft mood lighting.

Be creative with table lighting, recommends Krissa Rossbund, a senior style editor at Traditional Home Magazine.

Gone are the days when people hang a chandelier over a table and call it lit," she said.

She suggests hanging two small chandeliers instead of one large one, or buying a chandelier at a flea market and painting it a bright colour.

Outdoor chandeliers come in a variety of styles, from mission to modern. Manufacturers also offer many candle chandeliers for outdoor areas that don't have electricity.

► The Outdoor Lights offers copper lanterns and illuminated, artificial birdhouses. The lanterns can hang

For seating areas, choose weighted outdoor floor lamp, said Workman, who owns an interior design firm in Hollywood, Fla. "There are wonderful new outdoor lights that are almost art pieces them-selves," she said.

Coloured lights, illuminated furniture and subtle fixtures designed to blend with nature will be popular this year, according to design professionals.

Workman expects to see the use of colour increase, and "I don't mean Christ-mas lights," she said. Landscapers are starting to incorporate subtle red, blue and pink lights into their work, she said. Colour is particularly appropriate if you are planning a party, Rossbund added. It's "a fun way to change things up," she said. Some homeowners are

Kid-friendly eats & treats

As a mom who regularly travels with her kids, my concerns are always centered around what healthy meals and snacks can survive the trip and its inevitable delays.

You know what I mean by survive, right?

What won't crumble into a 1,000 pieces in a bag, turn toxic when they confiscate your gel pack, or smell so offensive your neighbours tell the flight attendants on you. (That actually happened to me. Helpful note: Don't eat hard boiled eggs on planes.)

There's the usual stuff at airports like bananas, apples and the occasional cheese string, but I like things that pack a nutritional punch as well as — you know — pack well.

These granola balls are full of protein, fibre and vitamin A (thank you, cranberries).

They're perfect for little fingers to eat, and are a fun and quick pre-March break flight project for your miniature bakers. Cranberry Granola Balls

Preparation:

- Spread oats and coconut out on baking sheet and toast in 350 F (180 C) oven for about 10 minutes or until lightly brown.
- 2 In sauce pan, combine sunflower butter, agave and brown sugar over medium heat. Stir until brown sugar is completely blended. Stir continuously so mixture doesn't burn.
- Add oat mixture, granola and cranberries to sugar mixture and stir to combine. Let cool slightly. With moist hands, roll a teaspoonful (5 mL) of the mixture in palm of hands to create bite-size balls. Place on plate and refrigerate for about an hour to harden. Store in an air-tight container at room temperature up to 1 week.

Ingredients:

- 2 cups (500 mL) old-fashioned rolled oats
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) unsweetened shredded coconut
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) agave nectar
- 1/4 cup (50 mL) packed

on March break

◆ There are all kinds of ways for families to spend time together during March break
 ◆ We've got lots of suggestions to get you started

To ensure a fun March break with your kids, why not include them in the planning? Send your older daughter to the library or your son on the Internet to find out what's going on in your community. While it's important to put structure into the week's activities, it's not a good idea to "hyper plan," says Alyson Schafer, a Toronto author of Ain't Misbehavin: Tactics for Tantrums, Meltdowns, Bedtime Blues and Other Perfectly Normal Kid Behaviors.

"What a lot of families miss most is unstructured altogether time, so that might be playing a board game or cleaning the garage."

She stresses that kids prefer a family swim instead of being dropped off at a swim camp, even if you're watching from the Capture your winter fun with a Canon digital camera.

With the new EOS 60D DSLR, Canon gives the photo enthusiast a powerful tool fostering creativity. It features an improved 18.0 Megapixel CMOS sensor, a new DIGIC 4 Image Processor for finer detail and excellent colour reproduction, refined ISO capabilities for uncompromised shooting even in the dimmest situations and an improved EOS HD Video mode with sound recording level adjustment and an external microphone IN terminal for access to improved sound quality. The EOS 60D also features an EOS first: A Vari-angle 3.0-inch Clear View LCD (1,040,000 dots) monitor for easy low- or high-angle viewing.

sidelines. "Kids really just want to be with mom and dad when mom and dad aren't in a bad mood," says Shafer.

Patience is the name of the game during this frenzied week. So prepare to stand in long lineups at places like the museum, and to cover only a third of the exhibits in twice as much time as any other week "Maybe that's the only

"Maybe that's the only thing you do that day, and the next day is a 'stay at home' day," says Shafer.

Organizing activities for families with kids of different ages — say a two-year-old and a 10-year-old — takes some creative planning.

Shafer suggests the family head for a destination (a local ski slope) where one parent takes the older child (down a bunny hill) while the other entertains the younger one (in the chalet). "So even though they did different things while they were there, there's still a common memory."

Creative ideas

Here's a list of some fun March break activities from Judy Arnall, a parenting expert and author in Calgary.

Stormy day ideas

- Dig out those puzzles and crafts that didn't get opened at Christmas.
- Buy a paint-bynumbers kit and have everyone pitch in to complete it.
- Have a themed movie week; for example, a Harry Potter movie fest.
- Pitch a tent in the family room and "camp out" for a few days.

When it's nicer outside

- Go tobogganing, crosscountry skiing or snowshoeing
- Hunt for treasures at a second-hand store.

Older kids

- Organize a cleaning project. (Does your basement need rearranging?)
- Pay your teen to do a big job such as categorizing all those photos on your comput-
- Have older kids check out the skating or swimming program at the local recreation centre.

Younger kids

- Throw a "stuffie" birthday party. (Invite all your stuffed animals and have cake, presents and a tea party.)
- Hold a Nerf party and invite the neighbourhood kids. (Go ahead let them go wild.)
- Pick an historical era and organize clothing, activities and food around that theme. For her "cave days" event, Arnall and her kids ate chicken with their hands, made candles and "cave" (paper-onthe-wall) paintings.

Travel with kids needs planning

Dut it doesn't have to be a huge hassle

With the children out of school for March break, it seemed like a great idea to book a family trip. Now, faced with bags to pack, kids to entertain and unpredictable weather threatening to delay your travel plans, are you having second thoughts?

Relax — or at least think about how relaxed you'll be when you get to your destination. You may not be able to control the weather, but planning ahead will help you manage any travel hiccups so you can enjoy a stress-free holiday.

As a travel enthusiast, Stacie Pearson, associate vice-president of TD Credit Cards, has some experience with reducing travel stress, and offers her top tips for travellers this March break.

Drive to the airport. Avoid worrying if your family and your luggage will all squeeze into one airport limo or taxi. Set your own schedule and drive your own car to a secure and convenient airport parking lot. Keep in mind that some travel credit cards will let you redeem points for airport parking so that you can include it in the total cost of your vacation.

Take the earliest flight possible. Try to book a flight as early in the day as possible and avoid the last flight out. Delays tend to happen as the day goes on, so booking an early flight limits the chances of getting stuck at the airport.

Don't lose a day of vacation because your luggage is lost. Protect yourself by booking your trip on a credit card that has Delayed and Lost Baggage Insurance. For instance, if you charge the full cost of vour tickets to the TD First Class Travel Visa Infinite Card, you, your spouse and dependent children can be eligible to receive up to $1.000 each. if your checked baggage is lost or delayed more than six hours. Just to be safe, make sure your carry-on includes destination must-haves, like a swimsuit and sandals, so that if your luggage is delayed for a few hours, you can head to the beach while you wait for your bags.

Avoid surprises by budgeting for all costs. While big ticket items are easy to calculate, costs including airport transfers and taxes often get overlooked. NEWS CANADA

Use your points

- Many travellers experience the pinch of unexpected costs such as weight restrictions.
- Consider using a credit card that offers travel reward points that you can use for more than just the plane ticket – airport parking, taxes, even a massage at the resort's spa.
- Being able to offset these costs with points will help to significantly reduce your total travel expenses.

Make your next vacation a breeze.

Good times,

We've got some professional advice for making your March break moments last

If you're one of the lucky ones going away for March break, you're probably hoping to capture special memories on your digital camera. But on your return home after the bags are unpacked and the photos are uploaded to your computer, it's then you may realize you have less-than-stellar

Here is some advice from Philip Maher, a professional photographer and father of two. He offers these tips to improve your vacation pho-

- Don't shoot into the light. This is the most common mistake of vacation photos. Ensure the source of light (usually the sun) is behind
- Hold the camera steady. With digital cameras, there is a tendency to hold the camera a foot from your eye. This blurs your images. eye. This your intages, or spectacular images,
  avoid noon-hour shots.
  You'll end up with ugly, harsh shadows. Use morning or late-afternoon light or avoid shadows altogether by taking pictures on overcast days.

- Do you ever wonder what to focus on in a photo? It's the eyes. Don't worry about the rest of the face.
- · Don't be afraid to rearrange your subjects. Squish your kids' faces together or ask dad to place his arm around his daugh-
- Take your family photos quickly. Kids can be squirmy and they hate it when mom or dad pull out the camera and take 10 minutes (an eternity in kid time) to set up and make the shot. Taking photos of your kids is like ripping off a bandage — do it fast and they won't mind next time. • Be patient and wait for ac- tion. Having the camera at the ready captures those spectacular action images, which your children will remember into adulthood. Isn't creating family memories the point of the entire exercise?

It's March break — so take a hike

According to a recent study by the Canadian Fitness and Lifestyle Research Institute, Canadian children do not get enough physical activity on a daily basis. Walking is an easy way to incorporate exercise into your child's daily routine. And it isn't only a great source of exercise. According to research, going for a walk can also improve your child's mood. This March break, Get your kids walking (and smiling) with these tips.

• Walk with a buddy.

- Whether it's a friend, family member or even a dog,
- having a walking buddy will make the time fly.

   Establish a "walking school bus." Select a route from home to school and pick up other children along the way. Take turns with other parents to lead the walking school bus each day.
- Go on family hikes. At Best (atmybest. a national school-(atmybest. based children's wellness program developed by AstraZeneca Canada and Physical and Health Education Canada, recommends that communities start hiking clubs so families can do physical activity together. It's also a wonderful way to make new friends and get to know your neighbourhood.

Take care in the sun

An Ontario poll suggests many young people continue to expose them-selves to ultraviolet radiation from the sun or the use of tanning equipment, despite the risk of skin cancer, including potentially deadly melanoma.

The Environics survey shows that many young people in the province still engage in harmful behaviours, such as getting a "base tan" before going on a beach vacation because they believe it will protect them from sunburn.

'We're concerned that too many Ontarians continue to seek a tan, especially before and during a winter vacation in a sunny climate," says Dr. Loraine

The sun can cause damage — even in winter.

The popular Civic sedan and coupe get complete makeovers, but still look similar to the current models.

Honda promises improved power and fuel efficiency across the line, which includes the sporty Si, natural-gas-powered GX and gas-electric Civic Hybrid that will feature lithium-ion batteries (instead of nickel-metal-hydride) for the first time.

The 1 Series M performance coupe makes its way to dealers this spring saddled with a 335-horsepower twin-turbocharged inline six-cylinder engine, sport suspension and big alloy wheels and brakes.

Also shown was the spectacularly new 650i convertible with its 400-horse-power 4.4-litre V8.

A sleek new A6 highlighted the turntable and provided a neat contrast to the even sleeker A7 hatchback that the automaker introduced a couple of months earlier.

Audi claims the sedan is larger, quieter and more rigid than the outgoing model and features added luxury content.

Engine choices include a 177-horsepower turbo-diesel and a gasoline-electric hybrid powerplant that delivers 245 horses.

STARS

Curtis Glencross scored in the third round of the shootout to give the Calgary Flames a 4-3 victory over the Dallas Stars last night.

Glencross, who scored the deciding goals in Calgary's previous two games, managed to beat Stars goalie Kari Lehtonen with a snap shot.

Rene Bourque, Tom Kostopoulos and Anton Babchuk scored first-period goals during a 3:15 span to get the Flames off to a fast start before the Stars came back.

Jamie Benn and Ribeiro scored for Dallas, and Tomas Vincour drew the Stars even at 3-3 at 5:39 of the third period on a sharpangled shot from the left circle for his first NHL goal.

The Flames have won three straight and move into a tie with Chicago for fourth in Western Conference, a point ahead of Dallas.

Calgary gained momentum when Bourque fired a loose puck from the left circle past Lehtonen at 10:26 of the opening period.

The Flames needed only 1:02 to extend the lead when Kostopoulos capitalized on a rebound.

Babchuk's shot from the right point made it 3-0 at 13:41 of the first period before Benn made it a twogoal game on a power play at 18:28.

Dallas dominated the second with a 15-4 shots advantage and Ribeiro pulled the Stars within a goal on a wrist shot from the right circle at 5:12.

The Olympic champion missed a takeout attempt in the third end, giving Manitoba a steal of two and a lead the two-time national champion wouldn't relinquish.

"After three ends we were just ripping everything," Stoughton said. "That's what worked out great. The peels were just on fire. (Third) Jonny (Mead) was making every double and runback there was imaginable and (second) Reid (Carruthers) made everything and Steve (Gould) set up the ends perfect.

Today's horoscope

T Aries March 21-April 20 Love is in the air, today. Is there someone you secretly fancy but haven't vet had the chance to approach? That chance is about to arrive. Be ready!

¥ Taurus April 21-May 21 You will find it remarkably easy to get your way today. If you use charm rather than coercion, almost anyone will do almost anything you ask - without

II Gemini May 22-June 21 No matter how much others might question your beliefs, you are comfortable with them and that is the only thing that matters. The more you look at the world today, the more it will make sense, and the happier you will be.

G Cancer June 22-July 22

Make sure you get value for money today. It's not like you to be easygoing about how your cash is spent, but for some reason you don't seem to care how much things are costing you. You should.

Ω Leo July 23-Aug.23 It's one of the best days of the year for affairs of the heart. Make an effort to reach out to those you love. Some people seem to believe you love yourself more than them. Prove them wrong

TIP Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Don't work so hard. Venus, planet of harmony, in the work and wellbeing area of your chart urges you to rest, relax and restore the equilibrium between mind, body and emotions.

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

← Libra Sept. 23-0ct. 23 You won't be shy about letting those you care for know how much they mean to you. Creatively, too, this is a good day. Let your artistic side come out.

M Scorpio oct. 24-Nov. 22 You may have been too busy to spend much quality time with family and friends, but that's OK because you are about to make up for it. You will happily sacrifice your desires for the needs of those around you.

→ Sagittarius

Nov. 23-Dec. 21 You will want to express your feelings in ways that can cast no doubt about what you are trying to say. This is a good time to write love letters or to pick up the phone and say, "I love you."

り Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 You may be in the middle of a winning streak, but don't take your good fortune for granted

Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Physically and emotionally, you feel good thanks to Venus in your sign. You will feel even better if you get out and meet as many people as you can.

H Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Try not to get too serious about life, today. There will be time to ponder when you have completed your current task. For now, it's about details, Stav focused. SALLY BROMPTON and spend too much money on things you don't need. What happened to that Capri-corn caution? You'll need it.
